Bearing Strawberries

The past few years have convinced us that the fall bearing strawberries are with us to stay, and have established themselves as a most delightful and profitable acquisition that the berry world has known—an entirely new species that produces berries from May until November. After careful experimenting with them we have decided upon these four varieties as the best: Americus, Progressive, Superb and Iowa.

AMERICUS (per) one of the best known and most thrifty growers of the fall bearing varieties. Good, heavy root system, foliage large, a good plant maker. Plants are strong, healthy and deep rooters. The fruit is firm, medium to large, light red, heart shape, of fine texture, quality extra good, fruit stems strong, holding berries from the ground. Young runner plants begin to bear as soon as they begin to root. A valuable variety. Price 50 cents per 12; $3.50 per 100.

PROGRESSIVE—This is one of the very best of the ever-bearing sorts. Plants medium sized, resembling Dunlap; has a strong, healthy foliage, good root system, good plant maker. Fruit is of good, medium size, color, deep red inside and out, quite firm, quality rich and sweet. We think this is one of the best ever-bearing sorts. Price 50 cents per 12; $3.50 per 100.

SUPERB—(per). Mr. Samuel Cooper of New York, the originator of the Superb, considers it the best fall bearing strawberry to date. A healthy grower that makes runners freely. Superb berries are larger than other varieties and of better quality and appearance. The fruit of Superb is large, round, rich, dark colored, glossy, attractive and smooth, and ripens all over at once. Price 75 cents per 12; $4.00 per 100.

IOWA (per). Introduced by Mr. Crawford of Ohio, well known as an able authority on strawberries. This is a strong plant maker, vigorous grower, productive. The berries are large, nearly round, of fine appearance and quality. The flavor is extra fine. Price 75 cents per 12; $4.00 per 100.
